

You have my order for the baggage. See to it that the first baggage wagons I order burnt are not those of the general staff.

3d, (To the Prints of Neuehlitd.) Write to officers commanding anny corps that we lose many men daily Waits? there Ls no ayHtem in the supply service; it Ls urgently nm'.HHiury that they .should take measures in concert with thrir colonels to put an end to a state of things that threatens the army with destruction. Every day the enemy pick up several hundred prisoners. During the twenty years in which I have commanded French armies, I have never wt*n the commissariat service so hopelessly bud; there H no one, the jHH>ple. sent out here have no ability timi no experience,

7th, on the heights of Borodino:

Soldiers, here at last is the battle that you have so long «cpeHed! Victory w>w depends on your efforts, and Ls etweJitit. It will give u« abundance, good winter quartern* and a sjmly return to our country. Do what you did at AuMterlitz» at Friedland* at Vitebsk, at Smolensk, And U*t |H»Htcrity point with pride to your conduct on thw day: let people nay of you; "He was at that great battle (might under the widi« of Moscow!"

Hth, OattUi«/ HwtHliiw.

Th« battle of Ikirtulsno it< the most glorious, most difficult* and most creditable operation of war carried out by the (t&ulx, of wliit'h either ancient or modern history makrx mention, Datintlens heroes,—Murat, Ney, Foni-»tt»w»ki.'""-it i» to you the glory in duel What great, what •plrmlid dmlx HUtory might plat^e on record! How our intrepid cn»rn»«i*w dmrgrwl and »bred the guonera o».